

IOP Institute of Physics

24 May 2010

Dear colleague,

Stimulating Physics Network National CPD conference 17 - 19 June

I am writing to invite you to this free conference at the Institute of Physics in London. The conference will be useful to anyone who provides support, CPD or training for teachers of physics. There will be discussions, practical workshops, site visits, a conference dinner and keynote talks from leading thinkers in physics education. It will also be an opportunity to meet the education team at the Institute and learn about our current activities and resources.

This is the first conference of its kind and, through such events, we hope to bring together, work with and strengthen the community of physics teacher supporters. We are very keen to build on existing links and establish new ones to help coordinate and strengthen the support available to new, existing and non-specialist teachers of physics.

The conference will run over three days; however, the first two days contain the core activities. It is free to attend – you will only need to cover your travel and accommodation costs – and we are able to help you find somewhere to stay.

A draft of the full programme is attached and there is up-to-date information at <http://stimulatingphysics.org/events.htm>; if you would like to apply to join us for one, two or three days in June, please fill in the application form <https://www.eventsforce.net/iop/91/register>.

I hope to meet you then.

Yours faithfully,

Charles Tracy
Head of Education Pre-19
